Bravo Wraggs!

The Evening of Jazz and Blues put on July 28 by Wraggs Wall under the auspices of the New Hope Arts Commission was an incredible evening of entertainment.

Marva Hicks and Bobby Lewis were a revelation. Not only did they have the most wonderful voices but their rapport with the audience was palpable.

They began with the Peggy Lee standard "Fever" and by the time they wrung every last drop of soul from that tune, the entire audience had "fever all through the night."

They gave us 100 percent and the standing ovation from the small crowd lasted several minutes.

Every person who was blessed enough to be in attendance, I know, will come back when Wraggs puts up her original musical, "Colours." At that time, the joint should be jumpin'.

I have had the pleasure of reading her script and I heard the wonderful Pop-R&B music. I know that word of mouth will make "Colours" a sold-out show.

When the date is announced, I suggest that you buy your tickets as soon as you can.

Bravo, Wraggs!
